South Africa - The Excitement and Joy of Hosting the World Cup

This session will give the attendee a first-hand insight into the lives of an average African towards the 2010 World Cup and the special skill attributed to players born in the dusty townships of Soweto and the rural areas of South Africa. What are the factors responsible for that gift?

How will this benefit the attendee? By making them aware of the importance of not importing methodology, but rather adjusting to your own specific needs taking into account diverse cultures and social strata.
